

JOB DESCRIPTION

CONSULTANT, RESEARCH AND ADVISORY PRACTICE, ASIA HOUSE

Asia House is seeking a Consultant to join its research and advisory practice.

Asia House is a centre of expertise on trade, investment and public policy. We drive political, economic and commercial engagement between Asia and Europe. The Research and Advisory practice is a new pillar of Asia House which aims to provide bespoke services to help organisations understand new operating environments and develop solutions to business-critical challenges. Our research and advisory offering includes:

- Policy research, market exploration and political intelligence
- Strategic advisory on engagement and finding practical solutions to business-critical challenges
- Government relations and stakeholder engagement programmes
- Public affairs, media relations, and communication support
- Seamless alignment with Asia House's events and publications offering

Responsibilities

Asia House is seeking a candidate for a consultant role to support the Head of Research and Advisory and Director of Corporate Affairs in developing the business and servicing clients. Key responsibilities include:

- Undertake research projects for clients including political and business intelligence, in coordination with the Asia House team and network
- Deliver advice to clients in written and verbal form and establish Asia Houses as a trusted advisor
- Create thought leadership pieces on political and economic trends and issues
- Draft client services proposals based on discussion with prospective clients, developing tailored packages to meet corporate and organisational needs
- Develop long-term institutional relationships with major multinational companies and encourage their engagement with the Asia House Business & Policy Programme
- Develop Asia House's broader network through building relationships with institutions, diplomatic missions and government departments

Qualifications and experience

Successful candidates should have:

- At least five years' working experience
- Experience in a consulting role e.g. agency experience
- Excellent analytical skills and the ability to translate analysis into advice
- Flawless writing in English and verbal communications skills
- Fluency in international politics and a solid grasp of global economic trends
- Background in political science, law, history, economics, journalism, or another relevant subject
- Experience working abroad or in an international role preferred but not required
- Knowledge of foreign languages beneficial

Applicants should send an application including a CV to: recruitment@asiahouse.co.uk